

Abstract

A method and apparatus 100 is provided for providing time-of-day data to a networked device 102-107. The method begins by receiving a telephony signal that includes time-of-day data and extracting the time-of-day data from the telephony signal. The time-of-day data is then transmitted to the networked device 102-107 over a communication network.